GOING THROUGH GEORGIA STATE

LARGE CROWDS GATHER TO CHEER PRESIDENT.

Taft Began 18 Hour Stay in Savannah Last Night—Visited State Fair at Macon—Address of Welcome Made by Col. Harris.

Savannah, Nov. 4.—Taft began his 18 hours stay at Savannah with a banquet to night. In Macon this morning the country appeared to have been depopulated to swell the throngs in that city. Enroute to Savannah large depot throngs cheered the few words the president had an opportunity to utter before the train proceeded. Here to night there was another great crowd. The president breakfasted this morning in Macon on southern delicacies that caused him to wonder how, if the Georgian breakfasted like that, such institutions as dinner and supper had any more to be desired. Withstand the temptation; however, of a mint julep. He took the julep in his hand, but was as far as he got.

In his Macon speech Taft said: "I was a Georgian when elected president, therefore I am being subjected to Georgia laws and Georgian spirit and heart. While pleasant to realize the consciousness of the power of the president, I'm bound to say that the thing that impresses me most is the power I have to exercise under the constitution, but limitations and restrictions I am subject to under that instrument. "Sometimes in the enthusiasm of reform there is impatience with legal limitations, such as lead us to disregard or ignore them. I don't think that the best way to get rid of the legal limitation that interferes with progress is to ignore them, but to have the people understand that the limitations ought to be removed and the statutes ought to conform with our highest ideals and ambitions; but that the first to do is to change the law, not to rely upon the executive to ignore the statutes and follow law unto himself. "If you depart any way from the law you are being led into the wilderness, by which you cannot subsist, by which you cannot survive. I have noticed a tendency to hold the executive responsible for not doing many things that are the business of my friends in congress. That does not rid the executive of the responsibility of recommending changes in the law, but does prevent his executing these changes without action of the legislative branch. As I intend to recommend many measures at the next meeting of congress I have taken this method of intimating where the responsibility will be if those measures don't pass."

Welcome Address. The following speech was delivered at the Macon, Ga. coming President Taft to state fair: The following is Col. Harris' address: Mr. Chairman, Gentlemen: On the 16th of last January, in the capitol city of Georgia, I felt to my lot to introduce to the students of the Technological School the then President elect of this great nation. I said then, as I feel still, that this was one of the most conspicuous events that had occurred in all my life. Standing before that student body of five hundred young engineers in Georgia's great capitol to present to them for the first time the president elect of the nation, I felt that I was selected to preside over the destinies of this mighty Republic. I conceived to be an honor and a distinction worthy to crown a life time of labors. But to-day I am here, and I feel that my life has been spent among my neighbors and friends, and in this matchless gathering of people of this dear old State, how much higher in dignity is the mission with which I have been entrusted, for I have been introduced to you the Chief Magistrate of the most powerful nation on earth, who is here to greet you in a social way, and to speak to you as your fellow citizen among these momentous surroundings. I have seen the elect of the people, but to-day he comes dressed in the robes of office and armed with all the powers that belong to the great constitutional position which he fills in this great constitutional republic.

An army of traitors is behind him; the cannon of a thousand floating monsters of the seas are at his call; the tri-colored flag of our country is raised or lowered at his command, and the innumerable agencies of this great government are around and about him for honor and for safety.

And yet, I think he comes with a grander bulk than all those; for as his triumphal march across the continent demonstrates, he carries with him the undivided hearts of more than eighty million people, whose admiration and good will his first year's rule has been ruler has challenged and brought to his side.

Representing all this today, my countrymen, he stands before us as the most distinguished citizen of any commonwealth in all this earth. May I not venture here the statement that he is indeed verifying already, the prophecy which his friends made of him when he donned the robes of office.

To those among them who have closely watched the trend of passing events, his nine months of administration would only seem to confirm them in the belief that he is undoubtedly to take his place in the very front of the great men who have filled this high position from Washington to Roosevelt.

A peer among the peerless? Nav, I think for harmonizing re-energizing and resulting the sections of a once discovered and discarded people, Pacific Princes will be this our first judicial President.

For, judging by the wonderful tact, power, and knowledge of men that he exhibited in grappling with that hydra-headed aggregation, the American Congress, during the late protracted struggle over the tariff legislation, and the triumph which he achieved in reconciling conflicting interests, and putting into that great law, either by actual effort or worth anything to this portion of the country at least, it can be seen that he appears to be assuredly headed for the very highest place which his friends in their admiration and their love had assigned him from the beginning.

I rejoice exceedingly, my countrymen, that he has come to visit us today. My pride is involved; I told him as I sat beside him on that ever memorable trip to the classic city of last January that while he had looked on the walls of the great skyscrapers in Atlanta and tasted the indelible specimen of that city's skill in cookery; that while he had rested on the wonderful sand hills of the glorious southern City of Augusta, where he played golf with the common people and played politics with the chief men of the nation; that while he had now visited the shades of the classic city where the university was enthroned in her majestic glory as the oldest of all State colleges in the Union; yet I assured him that there was something still left for him to see in Georgia.

To tell him that the subject was not exhausted, or that down in the center of the cotton belt, by the green fringed Ocmulgee was the City of Macon, the Central city, the City of colleges and universities, and that these are said to be laid out wider than those of any other city on earth; whose sunshine, according to the United States Weather Bureau is at times warmer than that of any other city in the nation, and whose ships, only now and then dappled with clouds, glowing like the scales of the sea, reflect the warm welcome of the sunnier hearts, of the noblest people, in the happiest homes in all this wide world, to those who come to visit this city, and that he would some time come to see us.

He said he would. And my countrymen, he is here today. Your President—the president of this whole nation, and the only one who ever went off directly from your midst to take the oath of this office upon him.

Will you welcome him as our nation's great head, with every fibre of your loyal hearts responding, and with his feet the allegiance of a loving and admiring people?

Yea verily—I thank God that I have lived to see the time when the nation's ruler since the war, in a season of profound peace, with no great compelling emergency to sway him but only pursuant to a plan of national visiting, has deemed this southern state and its southern city of Macon, the most fitting place for his visit, for here in this great State Fair, he can see at a glance an epitome of all that Georgia is, and all that Georgia can do.

Mr. President, I have heard you say once that you knew the Southern people; that in the great court over which you once presided, without jurisdiction included two southern states, that you had learned to understand and appreciate their character at its real worth.

You know Sir, that we have not been much of a factor in the councils of the National Government since the war. We have occupied rather an off-side position so to speak—a kind of orphanage as it were.

But I rejoice, as one whose memories go back to the days of the '60's, that you, as the representative head of this nation, have thought it worth while to bestow on us this evidence of your esteem, and appreciation, making us feel as you do, that you visit us as we are still regarded as a part of the American Union.

Mr. President, love begets love. These Southern people's hearts respond to any appeal of this kind more than any other people on the earth.

An angel was once sent to destroy an iceberg. He summoned a thousand men, and with pickaxes and shovels tried to cut it down. But the iceberg grew every night and required all that he had destroyed in the day. Then he surrounded it with the warm glow of love and sent the sunlight to shine softly upon it, and it soon melted away into the sea.

I want to say to you here, Sir, on this memorable occasion, in the presence of this great assembly, and in the voice of some measure of sentiment of these people, that while many of us have differed with you in the past on the great governmental questions that have arisen for decision and while we may still differ in the future as to the policies that should be pursued by the administration, yet the country is too large for us all to think the same way—yet we of the South are especially gratified at the frank and open manner of this portion of the country.

To those who have always seemed to maintain towards our people, and especially at the generous sympathy you have accorded us in our efforts to work out the problems that press hardest and most on our hearts, I welcome you today to extend a hand in this spirit and will always hold as a great epoch in all our lives the fact that we have had you with us on an occasion like this.

To those among them who have closely watched the trend of passing events, his nine months of administration would only seem to confirm them in the belief that he is undoubtedly to take his place in the very front of the great men who have filled this high position from Washington to Roosevelt.

A peer among the peerless? Nav, I think for harmonizing re-energizing and resulting the sections of a once discovered and discarded people, Pacific Princes will be this our first judicial President.

GOVERNMENT NO PARTY TO COOK-PEARY DISPUTE.

Declines Request of Geographical Society to Assist in Securing Permission of Copenhagen to Examine Cook's Records.

Washington, Nov. 4.—Refusing to be drawn into the Cook-Pearry pole controversy the state department declined a request that it cable American minister Began at Copenhagen, to request of the University of Copenhagen permission to examine Cook's records when they are submitted to that institution.

The request was made by a delegation from the National Geographic Society, which will appoint a committee to visit the foremost Danish university. The delegation, which is headed by Chief Government Geographer Gannett, urged Assistant Secretary of State Wilson that the society's committee should be permitted to examine Cook's records, which are said to be of great value in the study of the polar problem and representatives not only of the geographical society, but American scientists generally.

The department decided it could not accede to the request, as it was felt such action would constitute an official recognition of Peary as a polar explorer, and that any unusual action on his part might be interpreted as an endorsement of the claim of one or the other of the two explorers as to priority of discovery of the pole.

Members of the geographic society's committee, which will go to Copenhagen, will have the usual letters of introduction from the state department to American diplomatic officers abroad, asking that the committee be given all courtesies and assistance possible consistent with the duties of the diplomatic representatives. A determined effort will be made by the committee to secure the Cook data. Cook will be afforded every opportunity to present his case and the conditions of a new country and a federation of states. It most evidently true of the South, because in the older South, Virginia, the most of the early English and Scotch Irish stock, which had received but very few immigrants from the rest of Europe. Mr. Bryce then proceeded to commend to the society another branch of history, the study of contemporary events. This age, like that which produced Raleigh and the founders of the earlier American colonies, was an age of rapid expansion, and the study of the problems of the South, both economic and social, which confronted America were virtually the same as those which had arisen in Europe. Both as historians and as good citizens who desire to comprehend and control the question which the South had to face, they would do well to acquire a knowledge of the form which those questions have taken in Europe.

More than that, practical men were aided by thinking of the study of the experience of other countries, the more steady and assured would be their advance towards the solution of those social and economic problems which were confronting the South of the world. As he had urged upon the National Farmer's Congress the supreme value of the applications of science to agriculture, so he would urge upon such a society as theirs the study of the problems of the South of Europe in connection with those of the United States.

ADDRESS BY BRYCE

British Ambassador Talks Before North Carolina Historical Society.

Raleigh, N.C., Nov. 4.—The following address of James Bryce, the British Ambassador, was delivered before the State Literary and Historical Society of North Carolina:

After remarking on the double purpose of the society as devoting itself both to literature and history and dwelling upon the advantages of connecting these topics, Mr. Bryce spoke of Sir Walter Raleigh who might be called the first founder of North Carolina, as a striking type of the finer kind of those adventurers whose feats filled the earlier part of American history. He had his faults; but he had remarkable gifts, courage, gallantry, a restless and versatile energy. He had the high intellectual cultivation and would have been a writer—as indeed what he had written proved—had not his life been filled with active enterprises. He was one of the many ornaments of the Elizabethan age, when the great scholars as well as doers of great deeds. The age of Queen Elizabeth was one which might well command the interest of Americans, because their forefathers had shared in its glory. It was the age that gave birth to the men who were destined to plant settlements along the Atlantic coast from the Carolinas to Maine. Americans ought never to forget that their history on this side of the ocean was a continuation of their history on the other side. All English history down to the middle of the seventeenth century and indeed, even later, was the history of the American people. Accordingly the two things that he would like to urge upon them were that they should study history of every age and country through its literature as well as through its events, and that they should recognize the continuity of English and American history. This was true for America as a whole, because the institutions of the United States were those of the English of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries remodeled to suit the conditions of a new country and a federation of states. It most evidently true of the South, because in the older South, Virginia, the most of the early English and Scotch Irish stock, which had received but very few immigrants from the rest of Europe. Mr. Bryce then proceeded to commend to the society another branch of history, the study of contemporary events. This age, like that which produced Raleigh and the founders of the earlier American colonies, was an age of rapid expansion, and the study of the problems of the South, both economic and social, which confronted America were virtually the same as those which had arisen in Europe. Both as historians and as good citizens who desire to comprehend and control the question which the South had to face, they would do well to acquire a knowledge of the form which those questions have taken in Europe.

More than that, practical men were aided by thinking of the study of the experience of other countries, the more steady and assured would be their advance towards the solution of those social and economic problems which were confronting the South of the world. As he had urged upon the National Farmer's Congress the supreme value of the applications of science to agriculture, so he would urge upon such a society as theirs the study of the problems of the South of Europe in connection with those of the United States.

Just before the close of the day came the first direct mention of the late Felix Paer, former president of France and friend of Mme. Steinhilf. Responding to a question where she met Paer, the speaker replied: "It was during a trip in the Alps."

The judge didn't pursue this line of inquiry. To day's hearing closed by the judge referring to the accusation against Frederick Harrison, an American newspaper man, but the prisoner persisted she never definitely accused him, but said he resembled one of the assassins.

The judge failed to shake Mme. Steinhilf's original version of the crime. She admitted an intrigue, denied that she sent her mother to solicit money from her lovers and insisted her husband never profited from her own immoral life. Admitting that she had done wrong, she beseeched the jury to pardon her faults.

On further examination before the magistrate, Lefevre said his name was Rene Colard, and that he was an actor; admitted he had not the slightest connection with the crime and merely acted on a chivalrous impulse to save Mme. Steinhilf.

MURDER TRIAL OF MRS. STENHEIL

NUMEROUS DRAMATIC SITUATIONS YESTERDAY.

Man Brought Into Court Confesses He Participated in Murders With Which Woman is Charged—Paris Wrought to High Tension.

Paris, Nov. 4.—Dramatic situations were numerous to day in the trial of Mme. Marguerite Steinhilf, accused of murdering her husband and step-mother, Mme. Jany. All Paris is wrought to a high tension over promised disclosures. Few could enter court and hundreds outside excitedly discussed the case. A newspaper extras that flooded the streets.

Mme. Steinhilf, on the witness stand, dressed in a mourning gown, made a pathetic figure, fighting for life. In the midst of her inquisition by the presiding judge, her attorney suddenly pushed forward a man who he said, wished to confess he participated in the murders with which Mme. Steinhilf was charged. A whip read a letter signed "Jean Lefevre," asking that he be permitted to confess, then he pointed at the man and said: "This is Jean Lefevre."

Mme. Steinhilf listened to Lefevre's rambling statement that disclosed a woman, wearing a red wig, he helped commit the murders. She then declared she could not identify him as one of the murderers whom she had previously described. The court ordered Lefevre's arrest and warned the jury this might prove another attempt to baffle justice.

Police are inclined to believe the man's self-accusation belongs in the category of incidents where an individual had demented by reading the case resolved to sacrifice himself for the fascinating woman. Lefevre's description of the crime coincides with the original.

NEGROES IN DANGER

May Be Taken From Jail by Mob—Militia on Guard Will Refuse to Shoot.

Gassaway, W. Va., Nov. 4.—The local militia company is guarding the jail to night in an effort to save two negro suspects who are being held as possible accomplices in the assault upon Mrs. George Lockhart of Exchange. The Wheeling company in a special train is being hurried hither. Parties of men, heavily armed, are roaming the streets, needing only a leader to batter the jail doors and lynch the negroes.

Governor Glasscock arrived this evening, mounted a stand made of packing cases and addressed the crowd, advising that the law be allowed to take its course. His remarks were greeted with catcalls. Passing up the main street the governor was not met with cordiality. At the jail steps he asked the captain of the militia company if his men were ready to protect the jail with lives if necessary. The captain answered that his men had noted to not shoot fellow townspeople, even though commanded to do so, but would protect as best they could without shooting the negroes in jail. The governor told the captain that his men were in a virtual state of mutiny and would be severely censured. The captain answered that the men were firm in the determination not to kill friends.

At the conclusion of the rites the catafalque rested during the ceremonies, which occupied three hours. Here a wreath was placed by American Ambassador O'Brien in behalf of Taft and similar offerings were made for their funeral. The wreaths were placed by British, German, French, Russian, Austrian and Italian representatives. Consult Us About Your Painting

Before painting it is advisable to post yourself as thoroughly as possible on every phase of the subject. We help you do that. The mischief caused by covering your house with an inferior paint is hard to undo. Poor material makes painting a bugbear instead of the joy of beautifying the home that it should be. With our advice you need run no risk. A paint made of SOUTHERN PURE WHITE LEAD and pure linseed oil will give you that fine, smooth, tough film, elastic and yet so rooted into the wood fibre as to seem like a part of the wood itself. Such a paint is as durable as it is beautiful, and leaves the best possible foundation for repainting. Let us show you some good ideas for color, and estimate how much (Dutch Boy Painter trade mark) Southern White Lead your painting requires. GEORGE RODRIGUESE, W. Court St.

COUNCIL DOES RAPID WORK

NEW RECORD ESTABLISHED FOR BUSINESS ALACRITY LAST NIGHT.

Affairs of the City Received all Needed Attention and Adjournment Came at 9:10 O'clock—Street Sprinkling May be Resumed—Report of Progress Made on Widening and Daub Wells.

The city council transacted business with such neatness and dispatch at the session held Thursday night that adjournment came in less than an hour and a half. It was not an especially eventful meeting, but all matters relating to the interests of the city were given whatever attention was needed, no time was wasted and it was what might be termed strictly a business.

There was some discussion of matters relating to sidewalks and highways and the mayor and city attorney were directed to take whatever action is necessary to have the East State street railroad crossing put into a passable condition. The pay roll applying to all city employees was ordered paid and other expense bills of the city were ordered carried over until January. The street sprinkling company was authorized to again draw on the city supply for use about the square and business portion of the city. Mr. Cummings, who is in charge of the work at the Widening-Daub wells, reported the wells are completed and that a test can probably be made during the coming week.

The Proceedings.

The council was called to order at 7:45 o'clock by Mayor Bancroft and the roll call by Clerk Davis showed all present but Ald. Kendrick, who came in a few minutes later.

The minutes of the last regular and special meetings were approved. A petition was read from the Hoffmann Floral Co., asking for a two inch water pipe to be laid from the corner of Superior avenue and South Diamond street to their new greenhouse. The distance is 600 feet. The petition was presented by Ald. Loneragan and he moved its adoption with a second by Ald. Bahan. It was passed unanimously.

A communication was read from the Pines Outdoor Improvement association, inviting the city of Jacksonville to send a representative to a meeting of the association to be held at Bloomington, Nov. 18.

Ald. Brown reported that some time since Mrs. John Leach drove into an alley where a ditch was left open and that her horse was injured. The alderman thought there was some damage due and that the matter should be referred to some alderman.

Ald. Loneragan thought the matter should be investigated by the city attorney.

The mayor said that Mr. Leach had been to him and he understood that the amount asked was about $25.

Ald. Gonsalves made a motion to refer the claim to the city attorney with power to act and at the suggestion of Ald. Loneragan, he changed the motion to include the mayor, the city attorney and the chairman of the finance committee, who will confer with Mr. Leach.

Claims against the city were read. Ald. Goveia made a motion that all claims against the city except salaries be held over until after the passage of the appropriation ordinance in January. The motion met with a second by Ald. Wells and was carried by a vote of eleven to 1. Ald. Kendrick voting no.

On motion of Ald. Gonsalves, with a second by Ald. Schaefer, the clerk was instructed to advise all out of town creditors be notified that the bills cannot be paid until January. The motion was passed, Aids. Goveia and Kendrick voting no.

Ald. Gonsalves had to make his motion twice, as Ald. Fernandes raised the point of order that the first time the alderman from the second ward failed to rise when he addressed the chair. The motion was finally made in due form.

On motion of Ald. Wells it was decided to pay the salaries, which should be taken from funds now exhausted out of the contingent fund.

Ald. Goveia called attention to the need of a crossing on Pine street, north of the railroad.

Ald. Wells called attention to a number of walks which were over-turned in the third ward Monday night.

Ald. Fernandes spoke of the bad condition of the walk on East Welcott street.

Ald. Gonsalves, with a second by Ald. Merion, made a motion that all these matters be referred to the highway committee for action.

Ald. Brown brought up the matter of the East State street crossing which is still in very bad condition.

Mayor Bancroft said he and the city attorney had written numerous officials but had no answer and he believed that the council should take some action to hasten the matter.

Ald. Fernandes thought the council had expressed a wish at the last meeting to have the matter pushed with whatever legal force is needed.

Mayor Bancroft said if the council wished suit brought, that the city attorney could be instructed to commence action.

City Attorney Gregory explained the difficulty of compelling the C. P. & St. L. to go to any expense, as the road is insolvent.

Ald. Loneragan believed that the matter could be adjusted by conference with the railroad officials.

Ald. Kendrick said that the general manager and superintendent of the C. P. & St. L. were often in the city and could easily be seen for a conference on the subject.

Ald. Goveia thought that the C. & A. was the cause of all the trouble and should be the real dealer to task in the matter. The alderman also called attention to some walks in the second ward which need attention.

Ald. Bahan said that board walks in all the wards are in bad condition and suits are not to result.

Ald. Loneragan suggested that several men be put to work in each ward to take care of the walks.

All these matters, save the East State street crossing, were referred to the highway committee with power to act.

On motion of Ald. Loneragan the city attorney will confer with Mr. Brennan regarding the bad walk near the corner of South East street and East College avenue.

Ald. McGinnis called attention to the fact that a number of ordinances for walks in the first ward have not yet been enforced.

Ald. Loneragan made a motion that the city engineer have a square of concrete in front of the residence of Alfred Larsen on South Clay avenue repaired, as it was damaged by school children while it was in course of construction.

Ald. Fernandes called attention to the fact that all contractors who present bills for sidewalk repairs should be required to put the description of the property on the bills.

Ald. Goveia spoke of the need of a concrete walk on North Diamond street. Notices have already been sent to the property owners.

On motion of Ald. Brown, the street commissioner was instructed to remove an iron lamp post at the corner of East College avenue and South East street.

On motion of Ald. McGinnis, with a second by Ald. Gonsalves, it was decided that P. C. Maddox, have authority to sprinkle the streets if the merchants desire the work done.

Ald. Bahan called attention to the fact that Mr. Daub was in the room and might have something to say with reference to the Widening-Daub wells on which work is in progress.

Mr. Daub said that he had nothing special to report, but that Mr. Cummings, who has the work in charge, was present and would be glad of the opportunity to speak.

Mr. Cummings explained that the two wells are completed and that a centrifugal pump is in position. He said that one well had been pumped all afternoon, commencing at 1 o'clock, and that it produced 170 gallons a minute and that the two wells could on this basis easily give out 500,000 gallons in 24 hours.

He explained that it had not yet been determined whether the deep well or the suction plan would be the best in this locality, but that the suction method was the best if it was subject to conditions. If suction is used one pump will do the work. The pump now on the ground can easily raise 1100 gallons per minute, which would give a capacity of one and half million gallons in twenty-four hours.

Mr. Cummings said that the water which was pumped from the well yesterday was as clear as crystal and that as soon as pumping ceased that it came back to the level. He said that the quantity of water pumped was limited by the size of the strainer.

Ald. Bahan was of the opinion that some sort of a structure should be built around the pumps and machinery at the wells in order to protect them from the weather.

Ald. Gonsalves, with a second by Ald. Brown, made a motion to adjourn, which was carried and the clock in the council chamber showed the hour to be 9:10.

FORGOT TO HOLD ELECTION.

Indiana Town in Peculiar Predicament on Account of Thoughtless Citizens.

MOORE'S HILL, Ind., Nov. 4.—"The first Tuesday in November" is being observed in a large dry goods box in front of a local store today by the loafers and village "potheicians" in the little town of Olean, which has a population of 500 and which is located in the northern part of Dearborn county. Citizens in the town believe that the town board forgot all about Tuesday being election day until it was too late to even nominate a ticket. According to law the present town officers will go out of office and until the next election the town will be without officials.

Some persons passing through the town notified the people that elections were being held in neighboring towns and the news caused the town whittler to chronicle the time of elections on a dry goods box.

CAMPAIGN FOR MEMBERSHIP

Board of Directors of Y. M. C. A. Want to Swell Total Number to One Thousand—Prominent Business Man Will Speak Before Association Sunday.

The board of directors of the Y. M. C. A. held their regular monthly meeting last evening. After the regular order of business had been disposed of they took up the matter of the membership campaign, which has been postponed on account of the local option campaign. It was scheduled to begin on the 25th. There are ten teams organized of ten men each and the captains are with one exception, members of the board of directors. They think that the association should have and that it is possible to have one thousand members and are going after five hundred and twenty-five new members to bring it up to that number. Watch for the big bulletins on the bill boards.

This will not alone help solve the financial side of the question, but will place the association to the fore-front in the state, where it should be. The association is becoming more popular with all classes of men each day and they are beginning to find out that it is not a "sissies" club, but entirely the opposite, and there is no place there for the fellow of that calibre. The new year books that were being sent out are attracting a great deal of attention. It is very attractive and contains much information concerning the association which is a surprise to many, as they have not been aware of the scope of work being done nor of the attractiveness of the place. The book bears the title, "The Headquarters for the Men of Jacksonville," and the person who frequents the building these days is led to believe that the statement is no mistake. All loyal citizens should stand back of an institution whose sole aim is to furnish a place where men and boys may have the opportunity not only to spend their spare time, but to build up character also. Every business man in the city should or does carry a membership as a matter of investment in the youth of the community and to encourage them to do the same. The reports last evening show all departments active and the attendance reached upwards of 6500 for the month of October. The men's meetings averaged 145 for the month.

The big Sunday afternoon meeting at Strawn's hall is to be addressed this week by three of the most prominent business men of the city. Mayor Bancroft heads the list with Postmaster Reeve and County Judge Baldwin to follow. The theme will be "Civic Righteousness" and it is safe to say it will be interesting and all that. It will be sort of a jollification meeting, also praising the Lord for the great victory of right over wrong at the recent election. The "wets" will be just as welcome as the "drys," however, and they may feel assured that there is no animosity to be shown towards any man and all will be met with a glad hand.

COLLEGE RESERVES PLAY AT WAVERLY

Football Game Scheduled for This Afternoon—Coach Harrel Suffering From Fractured Knee—Bradley Comes Saturday.

The Illinois College Reserves will contest with the Waverly High School for supremacy on the gridiron this afternoon at Waverly. This should be an interesting contest. The Reserves are in fine shape and the Waverlyites have been playing a first class article of ball this season, having defeated the local high school team by a score of 11 to 0. The team will be accompanied to Waverly by Manager Knoppel and Chester Batterbel, who will act as referee. The Reserves will line up as follows:

Shumaker, 1. c.; Crawley, 1. t.; C. Jensen, 1. g.; C. Underwood, c.; McHugh, r. g.; O. Schwarz, r. c.; Gummshelmer (Capt.), r. e.; H. Schwarz, r. h.; Hodgescock, f. b.; Brown, 1. h.; W. Phillips, q. b. Substitutes, Glowers, Crain.

The Illinois college varsity will play Bradley Polytechnic school Saturday afternoon. The game will be called at 3 o'clock.

Coach Harrel had the misfortune to wrench a knee recently, which will discommode him considerably. It will likely be two weeks or more before he will have use of the limb.

The reports were for the first two months, the freshmen cards being in green, sophomores in red, juniors in yellow and seniors in white. The high school work is of a high order this year and gives promise of great advancement.

DEEP WATERWAYS DENEEN WARCRY

Governor Will Make Canal Chief Plank in Platform for Next Fight.

(Chicago Tribune).—Gov. Deneen and the Deneen advisers have determined to make the deep waterway the paramount issue in the next campaign in Illinois. The Deneen plan of a water power waterway, of course, will be the focus which will be made by the Governor's friend. This was made known in New Orleans this morning, just before a strong coterie of Deneen men started northward. The governor and county treasurer Thompson had gone to Mobile.

To the denunciation which started for Chicago this morning was left the duty of declaring that the results of the New Orleans convention have made the construction of the Illinois Mississippi deep waterway the one big political and practical item to be considered by the citizens of the valley, and particularly of Illinois.

This does not mean at all that Governor Deneen intends to abandon his fight for a direct primary law. Before he started for the Gulf, he stated emphatically that in his speaking campaign, which will open on Nov. 11, the waterway and primary legislation will be handled together and without gloves. The elements for a strong and strenuous sentiment in Illinois in favor of immediate construction of the deep waterway, however, is too good to be overlooked and when the New Orleans delegates go back to the state a sentiment will be budding which will put the issue away out in front in the contest which has its active opening the day the governor gets back to his native hearth. It appears to be a shrewd policy that the Governor has adopted. It is believed that by centering his battle on the waterway he will be able to align some of the down state interests which have been opposed to him heretofore in such a way as to make it politically impossible for them to desert the Governor when it comes to doing business upon the extra plank in the Deneen extra session platform.

This condition applies particularly to the Mississippi river districts from Madison county, St. Clair county, and East St. Louis down to Cairo. The trip of the President's fleet and the agitation following are relied upon by the Governor's advisers to have created a sentiment for immediate waterway building and the expenditure of the $20,000,000 by the state at once, which will force a bunch of natural anti-Deneen legislators into the administration camp and put them inside the Deneen lines so definitely that they will have to play the administration game constantly and consistently during the extra legislative session.

In the event that no agreement can be reached in the legislature concerning waterway legislation, it is the Deneen plan to carry the matter into the next Republican state convention, coupled with the primary law proposition.

sition, and seek to have party give its endorsement to the plans as outlined in the Schmitt bill of the session of last winter.

It is not believed by the members of the house of representatives who were in New Orleans that the waterway proposition will be an issue in any district in Illinois in the congressional districts.

"I believe that every member of congress from the state is thoroughly and unquestionably committed to the waterway," said Congressman Martin B. Mallen, "and thoroughly in line with the platform which was adopted in New Orleans on Monday. I know that every Chicago member of congress is on record upon exactly that sort of policy, and I do not see how there can be a difference of opinion in any congressional district in the state which would develop into a political issue."

The Chicago political contingent hurries back to get into the Sixth congressional district fight. From what they say here there is absolutely no agreement between Senator Lorimer and Gov. Deneen over what is the best policy to play in the district, although Lorimer was most anxious to get to the Governor a half an hour before train time last night.

Senator Lorimer expects to be in Chicago tomorrow and Friday and after the middle of next week he will be in personal charge of the campaign for Mexico. He said he had heard nothing of the rumored plan to back Mayor Pusey and Gov. Deneen to take the stump for Mexico, intimating that such a move would be a great surprise to him. The Governor did not commit himself whatsoever to the prospects in the Lorimer district.

MANY DOGS ARE EXPOSED

Were Bitten by Another Canine Which was Afflicted with Rabies. Springfield, Ill., Nov. 3.—More than sixty dogs are thought to have been exposed to rabies from 1908 to a dog the brain of which was analyzed in Chicago Pasture Institute. The brain was sent first to the office of the state board of health from Palestine, then forwarded to Chicago. The dog bit about forty other dogs in Robinson before it made its way to Palestine, where twenty-five more dogs were bitten.

RECEPTION FOR CENTENARIAN. Boston, Mass., Nov. 4.—Thousands of guests of East Boston attended a public reception held today in honor of the one hundredth birthday of Reuben Burnham, familiarly known as East Boston's "grand old man". Mr. Burnham was born in Essex in 1809 and has resided in East Boston for nearly seventy years.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 4.—The receivership of the Seaboard Air Line Railway Company, which has existed since Jan. 2, 1908, ends at midnight to-night, when the property of the company is to be turned over to the stockholders, in accordance with the decision of the court.

STETSON REVOLT NOT FEARED

Directors of Christian Science Church Claim That Action of Mrs. Stetson Will Not Create Schism in Organization.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 4.—Developments of vital importance to the future of the Christian Science Church are expected to follow the congregation meeting of the First Church, New York, to-day, called to take action in regard to the open revolt organized by Mrs. Augusta Stetson against Mrs. Eddy and her followers.

Though they profess to view the situation without the slightest alarm, the officials of the First Christian Scientist Church of Boston, generally referred to as the Mother Church, are nevertheless awaiting the news from New York with keen interest. They no longer attempt to conceal the fact that for months they have known of every detail of what is alleged to be an elaborate conspiracy to place Mrs. Stetson on the throne of leadership as soon as Mrs. Eddy passed away. Three months ago the campaign was quietly but forebodingly opened. When Mrs. Stetson was summoned to Boston before the directors of the Mother Church to answer charges that her teachings were unsound, as an outcome of their investigations, she directed her followers to depose Mrs. Stetson from her leadership of the cult in New York, though permitting her to retain her full church membership.

Subsequent developments, however, tended to show that to strip Mrs. Stetson of her authority and influence was easier said than done. The unanimity with which her New York followers rallied to her support gave further evidence of a fact that has long been generally recognized, namely, that with the exception of Mrs. Eddy herself, no women in the church have ever gained the power and control which Mrs. Stetson today possesses.

Mrs. Stetson is said to possess all the requisites of the born leader. She was originally a Boston woman, daughter of Peabody Simmons, an architect. After her marriage she traveled abroad, and for her own pleasure, she frequently lectured and wrote upon scientific topics. In 1882 she became interested in the Christian science faith, studied for two years under Mrs. Eddy's personal instruction here, and later became a recognized teacher of the faith.

When she first began teaching in New York she had a congregation of 14 persons. In a short time after her arrival the following of the Christian Scientists in New York had grown to 250, a large hall had been acquired for the meetings, and the faith was spreading rapidly. As a financier she is said to have proved a wonder, even to her closest friends. Within a short time she had purchased and built for a church for her followers in New York, and 12 years after she set out from Boston as a humble teacher she had her plans complete for purchasing a site and erecting the $2,000,000 edifice which now stands in Central Park West.

But her aggressiveness and her force, it is said, were not altogether to the liking of Mrs. Eddy and those in control of the Mother Church. Rumors of differences arose from time to time and were promptly denied. Then came the open revolt and at last to depose her from her leadership, which made further denials of the existing trouble no longer possible.

What will Mrs. Stetson do now? is the big question in Christian Science circles. It is known that she has accumulated large wealth; that powerful influences are under her control and that nothing but death will force her to relinquish her ambition to seize the sceptre from the hand of Mrs. Eddy.

The directors of the Mother Church assert that should Mrs. Stetson succeed in carrying through her revolt, it would not go to the extent of creating a schism in the church. They point out that the First Church in New York is only one of 1,200 Christian Science churches throughout the country, and that should Mrs. Stetson carry her revolt to the extent of cutting off all relations with the Mother Church it would have no appreciable effect on the religion as a whole.

ALSOB-ROBINSON WEDDING.

New York, Nov. 4.—Society was interested today in the wedding of Miss Corinne Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Robinson and niece of Col. Theodore Roosevelt, and Joseph Alsop, a member of the Connecticut State Senate. The wedding took place at the home of the bride's family and was a quiet affair, as the Robinson family is in mourning.

LAND DRAWING IN COLORADO.

Denver, Colo., Nov. 4.—A land drawing for 15,000 acres in the San Luis valley was begun today at Antonio, Conejos county, in accordance with the provisions of the Carey act. The land is included in what is known as the Teller irrigation project, from which a vast canal and storage reservoir system is practically completed.

GOOD POTATOE YIELD.

Ira Smith, a farmer living near Decatur, raised 1,000 bushels of potatoes this year from seven acres of land. He sold fifteen bushels recently at 56 cents a bushel, but does not expect to dispose of any more of them at the present market price. But if he sold them all now at 53 cents a bushel, his return from the seven acres would be $360, or $50 an acre. If the price goes higher he would realize a still greater return.

Among the visitors in the city yesterday from Murrayville were Dr. J. R. Elder, John Tendick, Mrs. Jepson Henry, Mr. and Mrs. Shepherd Bracewell and Mrs. Mary Ray.

THE ART OF LIFE

Donald Robertson and Cast Please Audience in Splendid Comedy at the Grand Last Night.

Donald Robertson and his caste of excellent players appeared before an audience of fair proportions last night at the Grand in a three act comedy, "The Art of Life," a presentation of modern life, conveying a beautiful moral. Mr. Robertson appeared in the role of Philip Laughlin, a wealthy business man, who if so disposed could have turned all his attentions toward pleasure, but instead took an interest in the activity of life and exemplified that "the art of life was to do." His parts in places were difficult, but were performed with accuracy and feeling that brought out all the fine sentiments of the play. His support was splendid. Fred J. Cowley was especially strong in the person of Mr. Taylor, a partner in business to Mr. Laughlin. The ladies in the caste were fully capable of their parts and Miss Hazel MacKaye, as Mrs. Laughlin, worked out the transformation in her view of life with a perfect naturalness. The play was different to what you so often see on the stage of today. It was heavier, more classic, instructive and carried with it a teaching that was cleverly presented and properly emphasized.

Tickets for the Centenary banquet tonight for sale at Hoppers.

THE CALL OF THE PLAYER.

Donald Robertson, who starred in "The Art of Life," at the Grand Thursday night, gave a very eloquent address on "The Call of the Player," to the men, women and students of the city Thursday afternoon in Academy hall.

Mr. Robertson said that a player should seek to elevate the stage. He went into the history of the art of playing and told of a theatre 300 B. C. with a capacity of 20,000 people, and in it were played pieces of real drama, not the comic opera of today. He severely scored the modern drama and said that the calling of the player was to interpret nature. Mr. Robertson's whole address was an earnest appeal to the people to cultivate a taste for classics and demand classical plays.

The Queen Esther Circle of the Grace church will give a waffle supper at the Armory hall, Saturday night, beginning at 5 o'clock.
